Henry did a joint honours degree including French Law. As such, he has a working knowledge of French legal texts as well as a command over the language itself. Further, at the Université de Strasbourg he completed a masters module in Private International Law. During this year, he worked for a legal charity, translating and writing submissions to the European Court of Human Rights on Private International Law, working on (amongst others) Parillo v Italy.

Closer to home, having worked on a number of travel cases during pupillage involving Rome II as well as the Package Travel Regulations, Henry is keen to expand both his paperwork and court practice in these areas.
